World Grain Marketing Record on Prairies

With the grain movement in the West at its peak, a world record in grain marketing was reached on Thursday, November 19, when 3,447,624 bushels of all grains were marketed on Canadian Pacific Railway lines in Western Canada. On November 20, 3,559,000 bushels were marketed during the twenty-four hours, bettering even the world record of the day before. The nearest approach to these figures occurred in the banner year 1915 when on October 18 of that year, 3,406,000 bushels were marketed.

These stupendous figures mean that the C.P.R. handled approximately 81 bushels of grain every second during the forty-eight hours of that period. If old-fashioned methods were prevailing, it would take forty thousand farmers' waggons to haul the grain across the prairies. If these teams were placed end to end to end they would form an unbroken line from Winnipeg to Brandon, or from Fort William to Schreiber, or from Regina to Saskatoon, or from Calgary to Field, or from North Bend to Vancouver, or from Montreal to Quebec.

From August 1 to November 20, 1925 inclusive, 148,078,445 bushels of all grains were marketed at Stations adjacent to Canadian Pacific Railway lines as compared with 109,651,136 bushels for the same period last year, an increase of about 35 per cent. Loadings show a similar increase over last year. One thousand cars a day left Winnipeg each day during the present month—a car every seventy-five seconds.

TIGER STORIES

By W. J. BRANDS

One time that I came across the trail was within a few yards of my own bungalow, on the Mazengah estate. A herd of cows, seven in all, had been killed without my hearing the slightest noise. The blood had been sucked from the boies, but they were otherwise untouched, and from the signs we concluded that the killings were the work of an old tigress teaching her cubs to hunt. I asked the natives to leave the bodies where they were, and established myself, at four o'clock in the afternoon, in an adjoining tree, for tigers often return to a "kill" late in the afternoon.

I waited and waited; it became dusk, but still there was no sign of Mrs. Stripes. The acrid smoke of the wood fires from the coolie lines came wafting across to me, and I heard the young men holding their usual tom-tom concert while the Santal girls danced round a fire. At last they stopped and I was alone in the noisy Indian night.

Thousands of mosquitoes assembled to sample my blood, singing their maddening song all round me, and somewhere not far off a bunch of jackals were giving their nightly performance—a series of barks, followed by howls and loud jeering laughter. There was also an insect that made a noise like a saw-mill, and in a tree opposite a "brain-fever bird" informed me at intervals: "You're ill! You're ill!"

Below my tree, revealed as white patches in the gloom, lay the bodies of the dead cows. Suddenly I noticed a shadow amongst them which had not been there before. I was tired by my long wait, and although I did not know if it was a tiger or merely a stray dog, I fired. Thereupon the shadow jumped over some carcasses and disappeared with a crash into the brushwood. Now I was in a nice predicament! I did not dare to get down for fear if it was the tiger, it might be lying up somewhere close at hand and attack me when I descended. On the other hand, I did not want to stop in the tree all night. I therefore fired a few more rounds in the direction of its flight and then waited for another half hour. Then, stiff and sore, I climbed down the tree and hobbled home.

Next morning, when I went out to examine the place, I found bloodmarks, but I did not follow them, for pursuing a wounded tiger on foot is equivalent to committing suicide.

As it was now getting late, I got on my horse and rode down to a mill at Kethihari, about four miles away, where I was expected. I had barely gone two miles when I noticed a little ahead a crowd of coolies standing at the side of the road. My horse stopped dead and refused to go any farther, so I jumped off, threw the reins to a passer-by, and, carrying my gun in my hand ran up to see what had happened. Not a hundred yards away sat a big tiger, apparently badly wounded, snarling and lashing its tail! The coolies were kill it by throwing stones.

Kneeling down I gave it a head shot, and it promptly collapsed. On examining the brute, I found that it was undoubtedly the same animal that I had fired at the previous night. My shot at a venture had crippled its hindquarters and how it had managed to jump over the dead cows I never could understand.

My next stories carry us north of my headquarters to the Rajghur district where, at Lukwa, the teaplanters had established a polo club. Proud of the fact that on their ground, they christened themselves the "Rajghur Tigers," and emblazoned their jackets with a tiger's head in gold and two polo sticks.

That inoffensive old tiger wandered round the ground for years, and nobody grudged it an occasional goat, or chicken. As a matter of fact, he was distinctly useful, for with a tiger about the natives were careful not to let their cattle stray at night, and so the young tea-shoots escaped damage.

Babies Wouldn't Listen to Mother

Talking things over—Teddy: "Would have been wise to let the loaves alone." Eddie: "Maw not as foolish as she seemed to be."

Mother Bruin looked at the two tempting crusty loaves which had been thrown into the arena with a sniff of suspicion. "Think you can fool an old-timer like me," she growled disdainfully, dwelling thoughtfully on the stupid arrogance of man. But Master Teddy Bear and his twin brother Eddie were not so wise in the ways of the world. They made a dash for the luscious morsels. "Leave that alone, don't you know it isn't the regular grub hour?" rumbled Lady Bear. Disregarding parental authority with a haughty stare and a disparaging "What can Maw know about these things," Teddy and Eddie, like Napoleon's army, marched on to defeat. They seized the loaves and bang went the gate!

Cut off from home and mother! Loud were the cries of remorse and grief as the two cubs were bundled into a crate to be shipped to Liverpool while in a lone cage there was a wailing and gnashing of teeth as a bereaved mother paced about in anger, resolved never again to underestimate the power of an enemy.

But in their long voyage, to Montreal and then across the Atlantic on board the Canadian Pacific liner Montclare, Teddy and Eddie had a real foster mother in the Dominion Express Company under whose kind attention they were conducted right up to the London Zoo.

With the baby bears went six racoons, six coyotes and fifteen chipmunks, all intended for the London Zoo. Toronto expects in return only a few bar-headed geese, a comb duck, a couple of leopards, two Rheas, (a variety of ostrich) and a Barbary sheep. The curator of the London Zoo hopes Toronto will get what it hopes for but in the meantime he has been unable to fill the order.

get a skin—decided to rid the country of poor old Stripes. Two platforms were constructed in trees, facing one another, and a goat tied up between them. The manager's assistants were ordered to line these platforms, and eight strong, with their chitt, they waited for the enemy.

Sure enough, the old fellow came ambling along, killed the goat, and settled down to dinner. The manager raised his hand as a prearranged signal, and everybody crept forward to fire at the tiger. Unfortunately, however, the platforms failed to stand the one-sided strain and promptly collapsed, shooting their passengers on to the back of the astonished doner. With a yelp of fear, the tiger extricated himself, bounded into the jungle, and was never seen again. We used to vow that the nerve-shock must have killed it! The unfortunate "Rajghur Tigers" had their legs so unmercifully pulled about the affair that the tiger's head disappeared

A more serious encounter took place on the Rajghur one of the great roads constructed by the old Rajahs, when my friend Grant, then manager of Rajahbari Estate, left the Lukwa Estate, after a Christmas dinner, to return to his home. He was riding a waler about fourteen hands high and was going at a short canter when a tiger jumped on to the horse's neck right in front of him! In alighting it knocked Grant out of the saddle, and the fall partially stunned him. When he got to his feet again and looked about him, but the tiger and horse had disappeared. Hurrying home, Grant woke up his men and went to look for the animal. He found where, becoming entangled in the jungle vines, it had fallen an easy victim to the tiger.

Hearing that I was coming up by train, Grant wired me to meet him, and the following evening at six o'clock he came to the station armed like a Sicilian bandit. When he told me his story, I got out my rifle and we rode down to his house, passing the very spot where the night-attack had taken place. Every movement in the jungle found us clutching at our weapons ready to fire, but we reached Rajahbari safely and decided to sit up over the carcass.

The tiger duly came and we wounded it. Natives later reported that they had found its dead body in the jungle. The story is interesting as the only case known to the writer where a tiger has ventured to attack a mounted man.

We were playing tennis one afternoon at Moran when one of the assistants, a junior just out from home, asked us to excuse him for a short time and left us. An hour later he came back, white and trembling with excitement, and told us that he had killed a tiger. We laughed at him telling him to get back into his place and finish the set. But he persisted in his yarn, and, sure enough, a quarter of an hour later the dead tiger was carried into the compound.

It appeared that while we were changing sides an old Indian had told him a tiger had killed a cow a short distance away, and, being disturbed, had left its prey untouched. The Indian advised him to go straight away to sit for the prute, as it would come back early. Our friend mounted his pony, took his .303 Volunteer carbine, and climbed a tree. Hardly had he settled down when the tiger came along, and he killed it with and rode to the site. Here he foolishly tied his pony up a few hundred yards away from the "kill" a head shot. He then became so excited and nervous that he actually began crying and, running to his pony, galloped as fast as he could back to us. Several of us who had not had the same luck in years that he had in his first months, were rather jealous of him.

"Those are lovely furs you are wearing. How much did they cost?"

"Only three fits of hysterics, darling!"

Adversity is the touchstone of friendship.

Things The Pool Can Do

The Pool can fight the farmer's fight, you bet your life it can
And it can sweeten rural life!— for woman, child and man;
And it can brighten every home throughout the Prairie West;
And it can sell at half-a-cent, and turn you back the rest;
And it can pass up "middlemen" and deal direct instead;
And it can beat the poker-sharks who gamble with your bread;
And it can bring you Hope again—the dreams which once you had;
And it can give your boy a chance, to follow after "Dad";
And it can tone-up business life, and it can steady trade;
And it can build on brotherhood a faith too deep for fears;
And it can strengthen your right arm, and it can dry "her" tears;
And it can prove "The Pool's The Thing", without the least commotion;
And it can spread prosperity—from ocean unto ocean!

W.L.A. HELD ANNUAL SALE OF WORK LAST SATURDAY

The Annual Sale of Work held by the W. L. A. Saturday afternoon, December 5th was a very decided success both socially and financially. The members of the Auxiliary are especially anxious to convey their deepest gratitude to the ladies of the town and the surrounding country district for their very generous donations of sewing, fancy work, cooking, cream and money, and also their patronage.

The various tables were all well filled at the opening of the bazaar, but soon became depleted as selling of work and cooking was brisk.

The table of home cooking and candy was in charge of Mrs. Folkins, and Mrs. Keith. The refreshments were in charge of Mrs. McSween, Mrs. Montjoy, Mrs. Foxwell, Mrs. Watson and Mrs. Freeman.

The fancy work table was in charge of Mrs. Richardson and Mrs. McKechnie.

The C.G.I.T., under the convenership of Mrs. McNutt, had a table decorated with a Christmas tree on which were gaily dressed little dolls; also boxes of home-made candy. The C.G.I.T. also took care of the bran tubs, which were filled to overflowing with toys for the children. The girls realized eighteen dollars in their booth which they donated to the Auxiliary to augment the bazaar funds.

The total proceeds of the afternoon amounted to slightly more than One hundred and fifty-nine dollars.

The radio which is to be given away at Saker's has arrived. A chance for everyone. Don't miss yours.

HOCKEY PICTORIAL BOOK OF CHAMPIONS

The editor has received a copy of the Hockey Pictorial, 1926 edition, which is now on sale at all newstands, and which is at once the handsomest and most complete publication ever produced in the world for any single sport. It is a marvel in artistry and industry of achievement. It is impossible to speak too highly of it. The book represents years of effort, typographically and pictorially, it is a "masterpiece". From cover to cover it is embellished with group pictures of championship teams from 1888 to 1925, in fact, the history of Canada's Great National Winter Sport is told in pictures.

Old-timers will be interested in the handsome halftones of the teams who were prominent a generation ago, while the younger enthusiasts will enjoy the reproductions of the more recent winners.

The book is not only lavishly illustrated but is literally crammed with much interesting information regarding individuals, clubs and leagues throughout the country.

Local hockey fans will also find very interesting group pictures of the United States Amateur Hockey Association Champions, who are practically made up of former well known Canadian players.

The book, which is published by George King, 84 Victoria St. Toronto, a well known Toronto sportsman, is a credit to the game and its publisher.

Did you know Santa Claus will be at Saker's all Christmas week. Bring the Kiddies along, They all love Santa.

Scions of British nobility are learning farming under the most ideal conditions in Alberta, and by ideal conditions is meant, practical conditions, where every chore on the farm is handled at some time or other by men born under some of the most famous titles of Britain.

They are doing this on Cottesmore farm, 25 miles east of the city of Edmonton, in the rich Fort Saskatchewan district. Cottesmore farm is owned and operated by one George Bridges Harley Guest, who happens to be the eighth Baron Rodney, descendant of the famous Admiral Rodney whose victory over the French fleet in 1782 saved the empire of the Britons from the Bourbons.

Baron Rodney himself, and Lady Rodney, have gone through the throes of life as hired help on an Alberta farm, and are not putting others through their paces on their own rich and fertile farm overlooking the broad Saskatchewan river. Believing that in this day and generation agricultural life in Western Canada is a proper pursuit for those of noble blood they are leading these young aristocrats along the right path by putting them through every known job on a well-run farm. They have with them this year, which is the second year they have operated this school in farming, Montague, son of Lady Farquhar, the Duke de Nemours, descendant of the very Bourbons whom Rodney's illustrious ancestor helped to defeat, and others.

Everybody works on the Rodney farm. Lord and Lady Rodney themselves superintend the farm operations and actively participate in them. They know how. They have been through the mill. When they first came to Alberta they hired out through the government employment bureau and took a real job on a real farm. Later they bought Cottesmore farm, the original holding of which belonged to Judge Fiset, of Quebec. They farm 1,000 acres of the finest land in central Alberta, and their farm homestead stands on the brow of a high bank overlooking the Saskatchewan, providing one of the most beautiful views one could wish to see.

Visit the Rodney farm any day during the farming season and you will find the eighth Baron Rodney here, there and everywhere, doing any one of the tasks that come the way of a man who superintends operations on a 1,000 acre farm. You will find Lady Rodney in the kitchen doing her cooking, or out at the dairy barn where she takes an active part in the operations of the dairy end of the business, or out in her garden where she works herself. You will find the young Lord Montague feeding the hogs, or stocking grain, and young Farquhar and Stanley and the others driving teams or pitching sheaves or herding cattle, under the supervision of the instructor who is there to show them the right way to do things.

It is a case of everyone to his task and sticking on it at the Rodney farm. It must be that way on a farm which supplies, from its herd of 40 grade short-horns, all the milk and cream necessary for the big university hospital at Edmonton, where there are several hundred acres in crop, and a bunch of fine hogs to nurse. It is a real farm, run by real people, and the scions of British nobility like it. They say it is the life. They seem to care for no other. They are going to make good farmers.

al Farm during the summer of 1925 were marketed on November 17th at Edmonton. In order to determine more closely the value of the respective foods used in different lots and the effect on type and finish notes were made of all which graded select alive and the identity of each pig was maintained through the process of slaughtering and each carcass was measured on the rail and examined for finish and quality. Seventy five per cent graded select alive and eighty six per cent qualified as select on the rail.

The breeding was pure bred Yorkshire, Tamworth Yorkshire cross and pure Berkshire. Every carcass qualified for select bacon on the rail as far as length was concerned and some were as much as five inches longer than required due to marketing all of slightly different ages at the same time some were over and some under the weight required.

It is interesting to note that sixty per cent of the Berkshires graded select alive and eighty-eight per cent graded select on the rail. However this is rather an unusual type of Berkshire and the results show progress in improving the type by selection and the use of outstanding sires. Even though progress is being made in the improvement of several of the thicker breeds of swine it is generally believed that the average farmer is well advised to grow the outstanding bacon breeds rather than the thicker types and by producing more select bacon for which there is an unlimited market the average price of pork is maintained at a higher level than if all the hogs graded as "Thick Smooths" for which the market is limited.

Luxury can be bought in some American gaols—at a price. Two prisoners in an Illinois prison claim that they paid $2,000 a month in bribes to secure extra comforts.

Muslin curtains should be rinsed in alum water, which does not spoil their colour and renders renders them non-inflammable. Allow two ounces of alum to a gallon of water.

EXPERIMENTAL

FARM NOTES

The experimental feeding of wine at Scott Experimental Station for the summer of 1925 has been completed. The Tests included a comparison of oat chop alone and a mixture of oat and barley chop. Tankage versus buttermilk fed with oat and barley chop and a comparison of oat and barley chop with bran and shorts. All food was weighed separately for each lot.

The average initial weight of the pigs was forty-five pounds. Each pig was weighed separately at the beginning of the experiment and once per month during the summer. At the completion of the experiment the total average weight was 206 pounds.

The average gain was practically the same in the lot getting the oat chop alone as in the lot which received oat and barley chop. The tankage was more valuable when fed with oat and barley chop than when fed with oat chop alone. Barley chop and shorts gave practically equal gains thus indicating that the price determines which to feed. The pro lac is a meal prepared in the United States and sold as a milk substitute. This product gave practically the same gains as tankage which is a by-product of the packing plant and is also used as a milk substitute. The buttermilk was outstanding in producing the greatest gains although for several weeks during the latter part of the feeding period buttermilk was not available while the tankage and pro lac were continued throughout the entire feeding period.

A detailed report of these tests will be published in the Annual Report from the Scott Experimental Station for 1925.

Manitoba Bees Set out to Make a Record

Who ever heard of a hive of bees that in one day gathered no less than 25 pounds of honey? If anyone doubts that the busy bee can be as busy as all that, refer him to Mr. W. D. Wright who has a large and prosperous apiary near Souris, which is in southern Manitoba on the Canadian Pacific Railway, and if anybody doubts the fertility of the Province of Manitoba or wonders if the summer suns there shine down on wide fields of glorious bloom, let him read the following which is gathered from the columns of the "Souris Plaindealer."

It was on July 31st last that the hive of bees beside which Mr. Wright stands in the above picture gathered and stored the twenty-five pounds and established a record for this continent and perhaps for the whole world. There was no doubt about its being true, because the Provincial Department of Agriculture made the test. From July 13 to August 3, the hive stood on a scale and every evening when the bees' work was done and they had gathered around their fireside to talk it over, the weight of the hive was taken. The first gain was on July 14 when 1 1/4 pounds was brought in and from that quantity the daily take varied up to 14 and 16 pounds. But on July 31 the bees got together and made a special effort just to show what they could do in the way of establishing records.

Perhaps they had just discovered that their efforts were being recorded. Anyway we can imagine that the night before, the queen called the crowd together, or perhaps only the captains of teams, and said something like this:

"Now, boys, the world's got its eye on you and tomorrow's the day we go over the top. Any lad that comes in here with less than his full load gets into trouble and the chap or team bringing in the biggest bag gets a wax medal with my picture on one side and his own name on the other."

And how they worked that day! They worked all the other days of the season too, because the total honey produced for the season was 496 1/2 pounds. Of course there were two or three rainy days when they stayed at home and did chores around the hive, and two or three other days when it didn't rain, but they stayed home anyway to look after the local elections or something like that. And when it was all over no doubt the queen said "Well, it's been a pretty good working season, I'll tell the world," and as always is the case the Queen was right.

Having proved her superiority as an organizer etc., it was natural that wider spheres of endeavour should call to this queen, so Mr. Wright shipped her to a big Bee firm in Alabama who are sending him another queen now, ten of her daughters next spring and three two-pound packages of bees with three more of her daughters in command. The trade was worth $35 to the Floradale Apiaries. The locating, capturing and caging ready for exportation of the Wright queen was witnessed by J. W. Breakey, M.L.A., and a representative of the Plaindealer. She was indeed a very fine lady and was head of an enormous population that objected pretty strenuously to her removal, and you cannot really blame them for that.

Mr. Wright's Floradale Apiaries this year produced almost four tons of honey and he hopes that next year Southern Manitoba and the neighborhood of Souris in particular will again show the world something startling in the way of honey production. In the meantime our friend the queen will continue her campaign for a bigger and better honey crop.

CANADA'S FRUIT INDUSTRY

Canada's fruit industry is worth fifty seven million dollars in annual production. This year the whole yield has been generally satisfactory. Small fruits had done well in every province except in British Columbia, where the unusually low temperature had a bad effect on strawberries and raspberries. Prices have also been helpful to the grower, strawberries running from 8 to 14 cents per quart compared with 4 to 8 cents in 1924. Apples, however, owing to their exportability and their possibility of storage are our main crop and of them in the total there has been a yield rather above the average, thanks to the abundance in Ontario, where an increase of half a million barrels for the year is reported. In Nova Scotia unfortunately there appears to have been a decrease of half the quantity. Such in brief is the testimony given by The Dominion Fruit Commissioner, Mr. G. E. McIntosh before the Pomological Society of Quebec.

A good word is as soon said as an one.

There are ten chemical elements absolutely necessary for the growth of plants. These are: carbon, hydrogen, oxygen, nitrogen, phosphorus, potassium, sulphur, calcium, iron and magnesium. The first three, carbon, hydrogen, and oxygen, are secured by the plant from the atmosphere and from the water which it absorbs through its roots. The other seven elements of plant food are taken from the soil. Are you endeavoring to keep up these elements in the soil by the addition of manures, the growing of legumes, etc. or are you exploiting your soils?

ASKED AND ANSWERED

The teacher was giving a practical demonstration to the science class. Her subject for the afternoon was "Steam and its Uses."

"What have I in my hand?" she asked.

"A tin can," came in answer.

"Right. Is it an animate or inanimate object?"

"Inanimate," chorussed the class.

"Correct. Now, can any boy tell me how, with this can, it is possible to generate a surprising amount of speed and power almost beyond control?"

There came no responsive chorus from the class this time, however; not even a murmur broke the painful silence. Then, unobtrusively, a little boy tremblingly raised his hand, whilst his companions eyed him profoundly.

"Please, miss," he piped, "tie it to a dog's tail and then watch"

SO LITTLE

It takes so little to make us sad;
Just a slighting word or a doubtful sneer,
Just a scornful smile on some lips held dear;
And our footsteps lag, though the goal seemed near,
And we lose the courage and hope we had—
So little it takes to make us sad.

It takes so little to make us glad;
Just a cheerful clasp of a friendly hand,
Just a word from one who can understand;
And we finish the task we long had planned
And we lose the doubt and the fear we had,
So little it takes to make us glad.

MANITOU LAKE RATEPAYERS MEETING

The Annual Meeting of the ratepayers of R. M. 442 was held in Marsden Monday last. Mr. Max Campbell was elected chairman. The secretary gave his financial Statement for part of the year. This gave rise to no comment and was passed. The action of the Council in causing bailiff to visit among others, certain Soldier Settlers gave rise to much discussion in which the retiring reeve (Mr. L. Berry) was included. Heated arguments to and fro, ended, fortunately, amicably, but the consensus of opinion was, and admitted, that the Council too much scope to the Reeve and Secretary in this matter.

Nominations for the election next Monday December 14, were as under:

Reeve Mr. W. L. Berry; Mr. G. A. Lawson.

Division 2. Mr. G. Cayford; Mr. A. Wells.

Division 3. Mr. W. Schlutz; Mr. F. F. Wright.

In Divisions 4 and 6. Messrs H. Smith and W. Bradley were returned by acclamation.
